WORLD NEWS

BREAKING NEWS: WANNACRY ATTACKS

The WannaCry cyber-attacks continue to claim victims across the globe. The large-scale assault could have been prevented if corporations designing Operating Systems did a better job of patching their products. More than 200,000 computers in 150 countries have been hit by the dreadful ransomware.

Victims of the attack might want to wait before sending bitcoins to hackers, as a solution has already been made available to the public and it's called: WannaKey. The open-source decryption tool has been deployed and some victims managed to decrypt their hostages files. White Hackers are to be thanked for the solution while software giants appeared comatose as the attacks unfolded.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION HAS BEEN HACKED

Nothing is immune to being hacked. Yesterday, more than 2,000 computers at the city's Public Transportation Agency got hacked.

The results of the caper? Free rides! The station payment systems and schedule monitors were locked down by a ransomware and station screens across the city started displaying the infamous malware splash screen.
